BRYAN'S UNUTTERED SPEECH IS BRILLIANT DEFENSE

FUNERAL OF "COMMONER" FRIDAY P. M.

Services at Presbyterian Church in National Capital

Dayton, Tenn., July 28—(AP)—As the body of William J. Bryan lay in simple state at the home of a friend here today, simple people of America paid him sympathetic tribute.

While others from among their midst poured messages of condolence into the little white cottage which housed the remains of the Commoner, uncounted thousands whose causes he had championed, mourned a leader silently.

Of varying political views, he had found in them a common chord when he came forward as a defender of the inspired Bible and revealed religion.

Even as news came from Washington that arrangements had been made for the interment of their loved leader among the nation's heroes, many were penning messages of sympathy to the widow.

And while members of the immediate family were hurrying across the continent from California and from other western and mid-western states, these admirers were discussing his virtues in homely phrases.

Body in State Today.

Among the foot hills of the Cumberlands where he had spent the closing days of his career, farmers paused to talk with neighbors of the man who had passed. In simple terms they spoke of him as they had heard him during the past several weeks, or they laid aside their work in orchards or corn fields, and made their way to Dayton where the body this afternoon will lie in state.

Out of deference to these simple people, Mrs. Bryan who had expressee a desire for an unostentatious funeral service for her husband, postponed arrangements for them to take a last look at his remains. Their appreciation of this deference was shown today.

By foot, astride mules, jostling behind rude conveyances and by automobile, they came, from among the hills.

Informal Parade of Honor.

They talked in hushed tones as they formed an informal parade of honor which passed down Market Street to the little home in South Dayton.

Lightly they stepped as the left the sidewalk and passed up the four steps to the grassy lawn, where rested the casket. Conversation ceased and they were silent as they viewed the placid features of him, whom last they had heard and cheered as he defended the Bible in which they believed.

Few of them ventured to intrude upon the widow—even to carry the message of consolation and sympathy they wished to convey. Relieved of the burden of preparation which she has borne unaided, she today found more time to review the past of her dead and to contemplate the tributes of affectionate acclaim millions of hearts were bestowing upon the memory of the fallen leader.

Secretary in Charge.

Plans for the journey to Washington and interment in Arlington Cemetery had been taken over by William E. Thompson, youthful secretary to the dead man, who was recalled from Virgina to join the widow of his former chief by news of the death.

Although surrounded by friends who tenderly sought to perform her every desire, Mrs. Bryan has been crushingly alone in her grief. Her son, William J. Bryan, Jr., left for California a few days before his father died. The secretary had gone on his vacation. All her daughters were in distant states.

The body will leave for Washington tomorrow morning and arrive Thursday morning. After services on Friday afternoon in the New York Ave., Presbyterian church, burial will be in Arlington. President Coolidge has ordered that flags on government buildings in the capital be at half staff on Friday. The fortitude with which Mrs. Bryan has borne her sorrow amazed associates who sought to share her suffering. Repeatedly her strength of will and bright eyed courage drew from attendants the exclamation: .

Boy Suffered Broken Clavicle in Hard Fall

Walter, twelve year old son of C. F. Heckman of West First street, suffered a painful injury while playing Saturday at the home of a neighbor. He had climbed to the top of a low building, a shed or chicken house, and in attempting to jump to the ground his foot caught in a wire and the jerk threw him to the ground forcibly, breaking his collar bone. The physician who was summoned set the collar bone and the little fellow is resting as easily as can be hoped for.

LOONEY'S CASE MAY BE GIVEN JURY TOMORROW

Closing Arguments Likely to Start Late This Afternoon

Rock Island, Ill., July 28.—(A)—As the state concluded its rebuttal this morning in the trial of John P. Looney, charged with conspiring to protect gambling, an attempt was made to answer the charges of defense attorney, William C. Allen, that the prosecution's chief witness. Lawrence Pedigo, had taken the stand against Looney "on the promises of immunity and the bootlegging privileges in Rock Island county."

Senator J. J. Barbour, assisting in the prosecution, asked to have Charles W. Hadley, Assistant Attorney General of Illinois, who is in charge of the prosecution, placed on the stand as a court witness to answer the defense clams, whch have been repeated throughout the trial. However, Judge N. A. Larson advised against such proceedure, terming it "unethical," and Senator Barbour did not press the matter.

It was considered likely that the closing arguments would be started before court adjourned this afternoon, or early tomorrow, and that the case would go to the jury tomorrow afternoon or Thursday.

Kiwanians to Promote Interest in New Park

Dixon Kiwanians voted unanimously to cooperate with the city park commission today in bringing about the popularity of one of the city's most beautiful spots, the Island Park. A resolution was adopted endorsing the project and assuring the support of the club as a whole in furthering interest in the site. With this end in view, the club will sponsor another "open-house" next Sunday and it is quite probable that a band concert may be arranged for in the afternoon.

The club had as their guest today, Attorney McDavid of Decatur, governor of the eastern Iowa-Illinois district of Kiwanis clubs. In his introductory to the membership, Gov. McDavid requested that all stand in silent meditation for one minute in memory of William Jennings Bryan, whose sudden death was made known yesterday, and whom he termed, "a man who has contributed largely to the thought and education of this country.

James Jarvis, accompanied by Mrs. Hoerner of the Dixon theater orchestra, delighted the club members with two beautiful clarinet solo numbers.

Second Daughter of Mrs. Dan Stauffer is Taken

(Telegraph Special Service)

Polo, July 28—The home of Mrs. Daniel Stauffer of this city was saddened again today by the death of a second daughter within a week, Miss Rose Stauffer passing away at the St. Frances hospital in Freeport. Death resulted from typhoid fever, with which she and her sister Carrie, who passed away last Friday and who was buried Sunday, were stricken while attending a Brethren conference at Wenona Lake, Ind., five weeks ago. Funeral arrangements had not been made at an early hour this afternoon.

Miss Stauffer was born on a farm near Polo and had lived her entire life in this vicinity. She is survived by her mother, two sisters, Mrs. Florence Boley and Mrs. Ella Summers; and three brothers, John, Henry and Burt, all of Polo, to whom the condolence and sympathy of the community is extended in their double bereavement.

Sindlinger Given 60 Days in Jail: Fined

William Sindlinger appeared in county court this morning, waived a jury trial on an information containing five counts charging violation of the liquor laws and entered a plea of guilty to the counts charging possession and sale. Judge Leech after a brief reprimand and warning against further violation sentenced the Dixon township farmer to serve a term of 60 days in the county jail on the count charging him with the sale of intoxicating liquor and fined him $1,000 and costs on the charge of possession.

Mrs. Nina E. Burhenn of Nachusa Summoned Mon.

Mrs. Nina E. Burhenn of Nachusa passed away at 12:30 o'clock Monday noon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary E. Shepherd of that village, at the age of 89 years, one month and 18 days. She was born in Heinebach, Germany, June 9, 1836, and was beloved by all who knew her. Funeral services will be held at Nachusa Lutheran church Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. F. F. Heitzel officiating. Friends are requested to omit flowers.

FORMER PAW PAW MAN'S FUNERAL IN STERLING MONDAY

Decatur Paper Tells of Difficulties Faced by E. E. Widmer

The funeral of Ernest E. Widmer, formerly of Paw Paw, who killed himself at Decatur Friday afternoon while despondent and worried over a certain big loss on his church contract there, was held at his home in Sterling Monday afternoon, with burial at Riverside cemetery in that city.

Friends who went to Decatur for his remains were told by Decatur people that Mr. Widmer was regarded as an honest nad fair contractor there, but that he had met with hard luck in several matters pertaining to the building of the church. He had also been in poor health and had evidently worried until he lost control of his normal self.

Third Death on the Job.

Difficulties arose in regard to labor, other contractors hiring men away from Mr. Widmer. Determining to complete the contract as early as possible, he had resorted to employing high priced laborers from Chicago, which added greatly to the expense of the work. Difficulties in getting started delayed he work, and from the first the removal of the old building and the building of the new Baptist church at Decatur has been attended by discouraging features, Mr. Widmer's death being the third death among men connected with the work.

Decatur newspapers mention the death of Contractor Davis of St. Louis, who became ill on a train on his way to Decatur to move a large residence off the church site, and who died soon afterward. During the wrecking of the old Baptist church several men were injured and William Walkes, a laborer, who sustained injuries when a wall of the old building collapsed on the evening of July 10, died a week ago Sunday.

Decatur Paper's Account.

The Decatur Review gives the following account of the tragedy:

"Mr. Widmer shot himself in the presence of his step-son, John H. Widmer, and P. H. Hess, superintendent of construction. The three had been having a conference in the contractor's office in front of the new church building at Edward street and Prairie avenue since 5 o'clock. Finally Mr. Hess got up and said, 'I guess I'll go home tomorrow. I've got things lined up now and you can go ahead.' He started to leave the office and then said to Mr. Widmer, 'You'd better go home yourself and get some sleep; you are worrying yourself to death.'

"'No, I'm not going home,' said Mr. Widmer, and he pulled open a drawer, took out a revolver and before either of the others could prevent he had fired a bullet through his head. Both men jumped to try to grab the weapon away from him but were too late. The bullet narrowly missed the head of John H. Widmer. The revolver was a 38-caliber Iver Johnson.

"The police were notified and an ambulance was called and Mr. Widmer was hurried to the hospital, but died before the hospital was reached.

Feared Big Loss.

"Mr. Widmer feared he was going to lose heavily on his contract, anywhere from $8,000 to $25,000, and he had even predicted that his loss would be much greater than that. The church complete is to cost about $200,000, including the lot. While his bid was considerably below any competitor's bid, his backers and his bonding house, the Columbia Surety company, felt that by careful management he would

VIRTUES OF FOUR ABSENT BROTHERS RECITED TO ELKS

Meeting Monday Evening Given Over to Sessions of Sorrow

Sessions of sorrow were conducted for four members of Dixon lodge, No. 779, B. P. O. Elks at the regular lodge meeting last evening Rev. Prentiss Hovey Case chaplain of the lodge recited the tribute to the memory of the late Glen H Putnam, former pastor of the Congregational church and said:

"I knew Rev. Putnam but a very short time, but long before I had met him, I learned of the great work he was doing in Dixon and vicinity among the poor and lowly. It is according to Christ's word that the poor shall have the gospel preached to them and it was this word that Rev. Putnam carried out, exemplifying the highest type of christianity. His was not a cold charity but a real charity, warm from the heart. Other men may have been more brilliant or more talented but none in this community were of a higher type of service to the poor than he. He was a characteristic Elk in his highest mood, living a life of service, charity and kindliness."

Len Thompson

Mark D. Smith eulogized the memory of another popular member of the lodge, Len Thompson, and said in part:

"Len Thompson was a man of the common people. He was without polish, it might be said, but he was a true Elk. He had a fine regard for his fellow man, was loyal to his country and its laws and was a lover of his family and home."

Attorney Martin J. Gannon eulogized James Sterling, another deceased member and said:

For James Sterling

"I knew Jim Sterling as a boy in the old school on the north side of the river, I knew him in the high school, I knew him as a student at Northwestern university, I knew him as a soldier and as an Elk. His religion was that of doing right for right's sake. Jim, as we knew him in this lodge, was one of the first twelve men to enter the World war from Dixon. He was in truth and in fact a hero who laid down his life for us. He was on the very threshold of life when death took him from us. Loved by all who knew him or came in contact with him, he always believed in the motto of the Elks: 'The faults of our brothers we write upon the sands, their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory.'"

Attorney H. C. Warner, Esteemed Leading Knight of the lodge eulogized the late J. Henry Kenneth who for years was the most prominent and active member of Dixon lodge.

J. Henry Kenneth

"There is no member of this lodge who dare deny the assertion that Henry Kenneth did more for this lodge than any other member. His esteem for this lodge of Elks was shown in one year of his activity, when he wrote fifty applications for membership into this order. Henry Kenneth was a typical American, one whom we all honored and respected. As a boy, he was born in Germany, but came to Freeport and there he played with my father. He became a blacksmith apprentice and then a workman at that trade. His ability asserted itself early in life and he came to Dixon where he secured employment in the Grand Detour Plow company. His service as a blacksmith was brief, when ability again asserted itself and he was made foreman of that department. Later he was taken from the factory and became general salesman and acted as personal advisor for the company he served. Honesty and fair dealing were two words that Henry Kenneth loved best and followed to the highest degree. He loved the simple life and lived it.

"He was a man of most pleasant disposition and a loving character. With men of his type in this lodge, it will prosper and endure and the loss of a man of the worth and ability of our departed brother, Henry Kenneth, is most keenly felt by Dixon lodge of Elks."

Semi-Annual Report to County Court of All Paroled There

County Judge William Leech has created an innovation in the Lee county court providing for the appearance of all paroled prisoners in the court room once every six months. The new order will go into effect in September when every offender who is now under parole out of the county court will be required to appear in person to give an accounting of his or her actions.

Mother of Three Victims of Creek Seriously Ill

(Telegraph Special Service)

Polo, July 28—The funeral of the three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Orin Arbogast who were victims of the triple drowning at Pine Creek Sunday afternoon, was held at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon at the parents' home, the remains being taken to Freeport for burial. Because of the critical condition of the mother, whose grief has almost overwhelmed her, plans to hold services at the church were abandoned.

WEDNESDAY TO BE BIG PLAY DAY AT DIXON'S ASSEMBLY

Dramatic Club to Present Two Dramas at the Auditorium

(By Official Reporter)

Last evening a large audience was again present at the Assembly auditorium to hear the fine concert given by the Schubert Orchestral Sextette, featuring a harp soloist who was especially pleasing. The Sextette also entertained at a prelude in the afternoon.

At the School of Religious Workers yesterday forenoon there were three fine addresses given. Dr. Aberly enlarged upon his original subject and spoke on the "Need of Salvation" emphasizing the fact that all are guilty of sin in a world without Christ. Dr. J. Roy Strock gave a clear and interesting talk on the "Present Day Church in India," followed by a forceful presentation of "Our Church and Her Men," by Mr. C. W. West. These three speakers were also on this morning's program and presented their subjects in fine appeal to those taking advantage of the splendid opportunity the School affords. Wednesday morning's program is made up of two other addresses of much promise, besides Dr. Aberly's Bible Readings. The one at 10:00 a. m., "The New World View and Religion" by Dr. Gruber who is a popular lecturer on religious and scientific fields and the address at 10:45 by Dr. Bostrom, "A Survey of Lutheran Church Music." Both are deserving of careful consideration and attention.

An enjoyable afternoon was spent Monday at the Reception held for those interested in the Ladies Missionary Societies. Miss Anna Sanford gave a most interesting talk on some of the India Christian Women workers with whom she has come in contact in her work in India.

There were also four very fine and well presented books dramatizations and reviews given by the Misses Howe, Hedrick, Stahler and Beiswanger. Special attention was also directed to the fine poster and missionary display prepared by several of the active workers. This afternoon the Mission Study "Peasant Pioneers" was given by Mrs. C. B. Newcomer, and the "Methods" by Mrs. C. E. Gardner. Both of these ladies will have charge of the Wednesday Mission study at 1:45 p. m. followed by an address at 4:00 p. m. by Dr. Gruber on "The Six Days of Vreation."

The Young Young Women's Department opened its sessions yesterday afternoon with an Ice Breaker in charge of Miss Stahler and her recreational committee. It was a truly get-acquainted party with plenty of pep and enthusiasm to start on their

"TENNESSEE CASE" IS REMARKABLE SPEECH HE NEVER DELIVERED

Mrs. Bryan Gives World Husband's Indictment of Evolution on Five Broad Counts

Dayton, Tenn., July 28—(AP)—"The Tennessee Case," an address prepared by William J. Bryan in defense of the Tennessee anti-evolution law which the late Commoner was prevented from delivering at the Dayton trial because of an early termination of the case, was made known to the world today by Mrs. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan declared in the address that the case was no longer local, but that it "has assumed the proportions of a battle royal between unbelief that attempts to speak through so-called science and defenders of the Christian faith, speaking through the legislature of Tennessee.

"It is for the jury to determine whether this attack upon the Christian religion shall be permitted in the public schools of Tennessee by teachers employed by the state and paid out of the public treasury" was a conclusion drawn.

No Right Violated.

Asserting that "this law does not violate any rights guaranteed by any constitution to any individual" was an inteference with freedom of conscience, Mr. Bryan indicted evolution on five broad counts, the first of which "is that it disputes the truth of the Bible account of man's creation and shakes faith in the Bible as the word of God."

"This indictment we prove by comparing the processes described as evolutionary with the text of Genesis" he said. "It not only contradicts the Mosaic record as to the beginning of human life, but it disputes the Bible doctrine of reproduction according to kind—the greatest scientific principle known."

Leads to Atheism.

"Our second indictment," the address said, "is that the evolutionary hypothesis carried to its logical conclusion, disputes every vital truth of the Bible. Its tendency, natural if not inevitable, is to lead those who really accept it, first to agnosticism and then to atheism."

Here Charles Darwin was referred to, to illustrate what was meant by this charge. "I did not in the least doubt the strict and literal truth of every word in the Bible," Darwin was quoted as saying of the period from 1828 to 1831. Then, said Bryan, "the change wrought in his (Darwin's) religious views will be found in a letter written to a German youth in 1879.

" 'Science has nothing to do with Christ except in so far as the habit of scientific research makes a man cautious in admitting evidence. For myself I do not believe that there ever has been any revelation. As to future life, every man must judge for himself between conflicting, vague probabilities.'

"The third indictment against evolution was that it diverts attention from pressing problems of great importance to trifling speculation."

Learn "How To Live."

He descried attempts of evolutionists trying to imagine what happened in the dim past and also to pry open the door of the distant future, declaring that the science of "how to live" is the most important of all the sciences. It is desirable to know the physical sciences, but it is necessary to know how to live.

"Whole not more than two percent of our population are college graduates, these, because of enlarged powers, need a 'heavenly vision' even more than those less learned, both for their own restraint and to insure society that their enlarged powers will be used for the benefit of society and not against the public welfare.

Discourages Reform Hope.

"Our fourth indictment against the evolutionary hypothesis is that, by paralyzing the hope of reform, it discourages those who labor for the improvement of man's condition," Mr. Bryan said.

"Every upward looking man or woman seeks to lift the level upon which mankind stands and they trust that they will see beneficient changes during the brief span of their own lives," he held.

"Evolution chills their enthusiasm by substituting aeons for years. It obscures all beginnings on the mists of endless ages. It is represented as a cold and heartless process beginning with time and ending with eternity and acting so slowly that even the rocks cannot preserve a record of the imaginary changes through which it is credited with having carried an original germ of life that appeared sometime from somewhere. Its only program for man is scientific breeding, a system under which a few supposedly super-intellects, self-appointed, would direct the mating and the movement of the mass of mankind—an impossible system."

"No Repentence—No Re-Birth"

"Evolution," Bryan said, "disputing the miracle and ignoring the spiritual in life, has no place for the regeneration of the individual. It recognizes no cry of repentence and scoffs at the doctrine that one can be re-born."

Would Eliminate Love.

The fifth charge brought was that "if taken seriously and made the basis of a philosophy of life evolution would eliminate love and carry men back to a struggle of tooth and claw. The Christians who have allowed themselves to be deceived into believing that evolution is a beneficent or even a rational process, have been associating with those who either do not understand its implications, or dare not avow knowledge of these implications."

"Majority Protects Itself."

The Commoner, denying that the Tennessee anti-evolution law had its origin in bigotry and was 'trying to force any form of religion on anybody" said that the majority rather "is trying to protect itself from the effort of an insolent minority to force irreligion upon the children under the guise of teaching science."

Asserting that Christianity welcomes truth from whatever source it comes, he alluded to evolution as "not truth; it is merely an hypothesis—it is millions of guesses strung together."

"The real attack of evolution," Mr. Bryan held, however, to be not upon Christianity but upon religion, the most basic fact in man's existence and the most practical thing in life."

Clarence Darrow and his conduct of the defense in the Leopoul-Loeb murder case, brought lengthy criticism from the fundamentalist champion under the question he asked:

"Do bad doctrines corrupt the morals of students?"

Says Leopold Was Example.

Reviewing quoted excerpts from Darrow's plea in behalf of "Babe" Leopold, because he had become 'enamoured of the philohophy of Nietzche," Mr. Bryan declared "this is a damnable philosophy, and yet it is the flower that blooms on the stalk of evolution. Mr. Darrow thinks the universities are in duty bound to feed out this poisonous stuff to their students and when the students become stupified by it and commit murder neither they nor the university are to blame."

Evolution Wars on Religion.

Mr. Bryan went into a discussion of science, declaring that science "is a magnificent material force, but it is not a teacher of morals." And that evolution is at war with religion because religion is supernatural. He claimed that science needs religion to inspire with lofty purpose those who employ the forces that are unloosed by science. Christianity, he said, cannot remain indifferent."

Christians Welcome Truth

"Religion is not hostile to learning," Mr. Bryan argued. "Christianity has been the greatest patron learning has ever had. But Christians know that "the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom," and they therefore oppose the teaching of guesses that encourage Godlessness among the students.

"Christianity welcomes truth from whatever source it comes, and is not afraid that any real truth from any source can interfere with the divine truth that comes by inspiration from God himself.

Evolution Merely Guesses

"Evolution is not truth; it is merely an hypothesis—it is millions of guesses strung together. It had not been proven in the days of Darwin. It had not been proven in the days of Huxley and it has not been proven up to today. It is less than four years ago that Professor Bateson came from London to Canada to tell the American scientists that every effort to trace one species to another had failed—every one. He said he still had faith in evolution but had doubts about the origin of species.

Chemistry Blocks Evolution

"Chemistry is an insurmountable obstacle in the path of evolution. It is one of the greatest of the sciences; it separates the atoms x x x if there were in nature a progressive force, an eternal urge, chemistry would find it. But it is not there. All of the 92 original elements are separate and distinct; they combine in fixed and permanent proportions.

"Evolutionists do not feel that it is incumbent upon them to show how life began or at what point in their long drawn out scheme of changing species man became endowed with hope and promise of immortal life, God may be a matter of indifference.

Today is a big day on the Chautauqua program. All Dixonites should be present to hear America's greatest preacher, Dr. Cadman in his address this evening at 7:45, followed by the G. Magnus Schutz Concert Company, made up of the finest voices and acclaimed as the finest mixed quartet of any chautauqua program.

Wednesday is known as the Big Play Day when the Bennett Dramatic Company will present its two delightful plays. At 2:30 p. m. they will give "Fine Feathers,' 'a domestic drama—the story of a woman whose love for "fine feathers" brought disaster to her home and happiness. In the evening at 7:45 p. m. they will present that human English-Irish comedy, "Peg O' My Heart," with its wholesomeness and sweet love story, simply told. This one day is worth the price of a season ticket—don't miss it!

be able to get out with a small profit.

" 'We felt that he would be able to make a small profit on his contract,' said an official of the church Saturday morning. 'We were liberal with him in in a number of instances where materials just as substantial but less expensive could be substituted we permitted him to do this. We did not want him to lose money, and gave him an opportunity to revise his figures. He worried considerably and for awhile was ill. His temperament caused him to exaggerate his own troubles, I think. The building was to have been finished July 1, but we gave him an extension of sixty days and would have given him still more time. We advanced him money on his contract more often than the contract called for.'

Beside his wife and 13 year old daughter in Sterling, and his half sister in Paw Paw, Mr. Widmer is survived by his step-son, John H. Widmer, whose home is in Clinton, Iowa. He was a native of Switzerland, where he was born 54 years ago.

Eight Under Arrest as Red Oak Murder Suspects

Red Oak, Iowa, July 28—(AP)—Eight men are now being held here in connection with the slaying of an unidentified ma last Thursday. The latest arrests are those of F. F. West 49, Galesburg, Ill., ad John Statton, of East St. Louis.

The vengeance for "squawking" may have prompted the slaying is the latest theory. Statton, who says he saw the stranger killed, declares the assailant cried: "You squawked on my pal and got him in jail in Chillicothe". The dead man was an itinerant.

"TENNESSEE CASE"

to the evolutionists and a life beyond may have no charm for them, but the mass of mankind will continue to worship their Creator and continue to find comfort in the promise of their Saviour that He has gone to prepare a place for them. Christ has made of death a narrow, star-lit strip between the campanionship of yesterday and the reunion of tomorrom; evolution strikes out the stars and deepens the gloom that enshrouds the tomb.

Used "Weazel Words"

"Evolutionists attack the truth of the Bible not openly at first, but by using weazel words like "poetical," "symbolical" and "allegorical" to suck the meaning out of the inspired record of man's creation.

"It is belief in evolution that has caused so many scientists and so many Christians to reject the miracles of the Bible, and then give up, one after another, every vital truth of Christianity. The miracle should not be a stumbling block to any one. The God who created the universe can do anything he wants to with it. He can temporarily suspend any law that he has made or he may employ higher laws that we do not understand.

Cites Leopold-Loeb Trial

"Do bad doctrines corrupt the morals of students? We have a case in point. Mr. Darrow was engaged about a year ago in defending two rich men's sons who were on trial for as dastardly a murder as was ever committed. The older one, "Babe" Leopold, was a brilliant student, 19 years old. He was an evolutionist and an atheist. He was also a follower of Nietzche, whose books he had devoured and whose philosophy he had adopted. Mr. Darrow made a plea for him, based upon the influence that Nietzche's philosophy had exerted upon the boy's mind. Mr. Darrow denies that the boy should be held responsible for taking of human life. He charges that the scholars in the universities were more responsible than the boy, and that the universities were more responsible than the boy, because they furnished such books to the students, and then he proceeds to exonerate the universities and the scholars, leaving nobody responsible.

"This is a damnable philosophy, and yet it is the flower that blooms on the stalk of evolution.

"Let me call your attention to another proposition embodies in Mr. Darrow's speech.

Illinois Protects Boys

"He said that Dicky Loeb, the younger boy, had read trashy novels of the blood and thunder sort. He even went so far as to commend an Illinois statute which forbids minors reading stories of crime. Here is what Mr. Darrow said: 'We have a statute in this state, passed only last year, if I recall it, which forbids minors reading stories of crime. Why? There is only one reason; because the legislature in its wisdom thought it would have a tendency to produce these thoughts and this life in the boys who read them.'

"If Illinois can protect her boys, why cannot this state protect the boys of Tennessee? Are the boys of Illinois any more precious than yours?

Cooper-Buzard Wedding Saturday

A quiet wedding of Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock was solemnized in Dixon at the parsonage to St. Paul's Lutheran church when Dale M. Cooper of Dixon and Miss Goldie Buzard of Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Buzard were united in marriage. Rev. Lloyd Warren Walter, pastor of St. Paul's church performed the ceremony in the presence of Miss Viola Bowers and Harry Buzard.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a charming dress of purple with hat in the same shade, wearing a corsage of pink and lavender. Miss Bowers, the maid of honor, wearing the new shade of blue.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Cooper have the best wishes of hosts of friends, both being popular and highly esteemed. Mr. Cooper is at present employed at the Brown Shoe Factory. Mrs. Frank Buzard, mother of the bride is accompanying the young people on a portion of their honeymoon, stopping off to visit relatives in Michigan, the young folks continuing their trip farther north. On their return to Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Cooper will make their home here.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR THE HEART

QUESTION—"On what do you base your claim that Adjustments of the spine will cure Heart Disease?

ANSWER—We maintain and have conclusive proof that interference with the nervous system is the primary cause of all forms of heart diseases. Usually this interference is found at that point in the spine known as the upper dorsal region. The second dorsal vertebra is usually found out of normal alignment with the first and third dorsal vertebra. This causes pressure on the nerves supplying the heart with Functional Energy. We are especially trained to locate this interference, and having determined its cause, to adjust the bony tissues in such a manner as to relieve the pressure on the sensitive nerves. When this is done, the healing process of Nature is permitted to express itself and recovery follows.

YOUR MISSION—

If you can not on the ocean
Sail among the swiftest fleet,
Rocking on the highest billows,
Laughing at the storms you meet;
You can stand among the sailors,
Anchored yet within the bay;
You can lend a hand to help them
As they launch their boats away.

If you can not in the harvest
Garner up the richest sheaves,
Many a grain, both ripe and golden,
Oft the careless reaper leaves;
Go and glean among the briars
Growing rank against the wall,
For it may be that their shadow
Hides the heaviest wheat of all.

Do not then stand idly waiting
For some greater work to do;
Fortune is a lazy goddess,
She will never come to you;
Go and toil in any vineyard,
Do not fear to do and dare.
If you want a field of labor,
You can find it anywhere.

—Ellen M. H. Gates.

CYNTHIA GREY SAYS—
Fathers Should Take Daughters as Well as Sons Into Business as Partners.

Lady Rhondda, an ardent feminist and a woman who has always been ahead of her times, makes a plea for fathers to train their daughters in the ways of business and to tak them into partnership.

Addressing the first conference of women in science and commerce at Wembley, England, she said:

"There should be more signs reading, 'John Brown and Daughters' instead of 'John Brown and Sons.'"

She herself was trained in business by her father, who was one of the richest coal operators of the world. Today she is one of the shrewdest financiers of England. Her suggestion is a sound one.

Women have long been the silent partners in the family business firms.

On the farms generations ago, before women went out into business as they do today, they built up a side business of butter and eggs. And many times they were able to produce the funds when the old mortgage fell due or when there were unusual demands made on the family exchequer.

Women have always kept the family books, and dispensed the family income. You know of hundreds of instances of small shops and businesses in which the wife has had as much to do with the running of the business as the husband, besides attending to a mass of domestic details.

Today many a girl who works in an office, keeps right on after marriage to augment the family income so that there are money and a bank balance before the serious matter of bringing up children is attempted.

There's no doubt about it, women have an instinct for business that has been fostered for generations and is only breaking out now. There's no doubt about women having come into industry to stay.

And there is no reason why a modern father shouldn't take his daughters into business as well as his sons. It's bound to come!

MOTORED TO MOOSEHEART SUNDAY—

Mr. and Mrs. James Kidd and two sons, and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Yates motored to Mooseheart Sunday and attended services in the chapel. Eleven hundred children were present at the services. Mooseheart is always open to the public. On the return trip the party visited several places of interest at Aurora, and also stopped at St. Charles where they visited the home for boys, a most interesting place, also.

ENJOYED PICNIC AT HOME MRS. ANNA SCHICK—

About seventy-five relatves and friends gathered Sunday at the home of Mrs. Anna Schick on Lincoln avenue where they enjoyed a delightful picnic dinner on the attractive lawn. Guests were present from Sterling, Rock Falls and Dixon.

DIXON COUNTRY CLUB DINNER-DANCE—

The members of the Dixon Country Club are giving another dinner-dance Thursday evening of this week, the dinner to be served at 6:30. All members are requested to be sure to make their reservations not later than Wednesday night, phoning Mrs. Moore at the Country Club

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—

Grape fruit, codfish balls, cornmeal muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—

Cream of carrot soup, toast sticks, lettuce on hard-cooked egg sandwiches, raspberry cream, drop cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—

Breast of lamb, baked potatoes, pineapple salad, lemon sponge pie, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

The cheaper cuts of lamb are quite as nourishing as the expensive chops and leg but require some time and thought on the part of the cook to make them interesting.

Breast of Lamb.

Two pounds breast of lamb, ½ pound bacon, 2 pounds green peas, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Remove skin from meat. Cover with boiling water and simmer ten minutes. Line a casserole with thin slices of bacon. Add meat, season with salt and pepper and minced onion. Cover with bacon and pour over 1½ cups of the lamb stock. Cover closely and cook in a moderate oven for 1 hour. Add peas and cook one-half hour longer. If more water is needed add it when putting in the peas. Serve in the casserole.

This is an excellent dish for the fireless cooker on a hot day.

Potatoes can be cooked with the meat and peas making one dish of the meat and vegetables for the dinner.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—
Improves the Flavor.

To make tasteless meat savory let it lie over night in a dressing of oil, vinegar and paprika with a little onion juice.

Add Grated Cheese.

If you want to increase the caloric value of soup serve it with grated cheese as the French and Italians do.

Machine Stitching.

Let your sewing machine help with the mending. Don't waste time sewing by hand when it can be done just as well on the machine.

Two Purposes.

Slip covers not only look cool and attractive during the summer months, but they save the wear and tear on your upholstered furniture.

FASHION HINTS—
Stunning Effect.

Black velvet is used most successfuly on white and pastel colored hats.

Large Monograms.

Very large single initials and monograms are used on the new leather handbags that are of bright colored leather.

Perhaps You've Noticed it.

Kasha skirts and turtle neck sweaters in matching colors are the smart uniform for sport wear.

Blonde Shades Good.

Blonde bengaline, untrimmed forms some of the very smartest of ensembles. A blonde satin hat and pumps frequently complete the outfit.

Very Artistic, Too.

Many ensembels for summer are carried out in shades of lavender and purple.

Black and Tan.

The combination of black satin and tan chiffon or georgette crepe is one that is very much favored by sophisticated dressers.

Veiled With Chiffon.

The smartest printed silk frocks are veiled with plain chiffon or have chiffon coats.

Quiet Wedding Was Celebrated Saturday

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Dixon Saturday evening at 7:30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Manges, 1049 Highland avenue, when Miss Mary Chandler of Dixon, formerly of Montfort, Wisconsin, and Ralph Mathews of this city, were united in marriage. Rev. Aubrey Shannon Moore, pastor of the First Methodist church of this city, performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Manges attended the young people. The Manges home was gay with fragrant garden flowers.

The bride was daintily attired in peach colored crepe de chene and wore a corsage bouquet of bride's roses. Mrs. Manges wore a pretty frock in tan crepe de chene.

After the ceremony a tempting wedding luncheon was served. Mr. and Mrs. Mathews will reside in Dixon, where Mr. Mathews is a valued employe of the Standard Oil Co. His bride a charming and modest young woman is a registered nurse and was recently dietitian at the Dixon Public Hospital. Hosts of friends unite at this time in wishing the young couple every happiness and prosperity.

If you want to high hat your neighbors, here is a made-to-order piece of millinery for your purposes. It is of hatters' plush and is trimmed with grosgrain ribbon about the crown. You should have pretty regular features and lots of dash to wear it effectively.

W. BROOKLYNITES INTERESTED IN AN EXCURSION SUNDAY

Many Will Go to Chicago on Special on Coming Sabbath

West Brooklyn—The many girl friends of Miss Evelyn Derr gathered at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Derr, Friday evening where they pleasantly surprised her with a birthday party on the eighteenth anniversary of her birth. The evening was spent in playing games, dancing and music and was followed by a delightful luncheon served by Mrs. Derr at midnight. Miss Evelyn was presented with many handsome and useful gifts by her associates.

Elliott Henry and Antony Gehant drove to Ottawa Saturday where they had a cab put on the truck chassis.

John, William and George Zinke shelled and delivered their last years crop of corn to market Saturday.

Frank Burkardt was a business caller in town Saturday from near Sublette.

Highway commissioners Charles Stout of Brooklyn and F. G. Knauer of Viola are to be complimented upon the decision to gravel the half mile stretch lying between Yocum's corner and the Dysart jog. This small piece of dirt road was a missing link in our gravel running north about five miles and was the cause of keeping many away from our village in the spring when the roads were bad. The commissioners put eight trucks to work hauling the gravel and expect to complete the stretch in one week's time.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hahn were shoppers in Mendota Saturday.

Henry L. Gehant is here from Dixon and will operate his threshing machine this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Schultheiss were down from Dixon Sunday visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Heiden.

Samuel Gaumer was here from near Ashton Suday calling on friends.

Misses Carrie, Mary and Ruth Berschied were out from Chicago over Sunday and visited at the home of their uncle, Edward Bresson. The girls have just recently returned from a two weeks tour to Yellowstone park.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bittner, Jr. motored down from the vicinity of Paw Paw Saturday and visited their many friends and former neighbors.

Fred Easterday was a business caller here from LaMoille Saturday.

Gail Knauer is clerking at the Meyer store this week during the absence of Mr. Meyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Gehant left Tuesday for Springfield where they will spend a few days sightseeing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jacobs were visiting in Dixon Saturday evening.

Mrs. Frank Hoggard is here from Dixon and is spending a week visiting at the homes of her many friends and former neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Gehant and family were out from Aurora Sunday and visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gehant.

Oscar Hand drove to Bloomington Sunday where he took in the sights.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Staubli entertained her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustaf Hasselberg at dinner Sunday.

Modest Gehant was down from near Paw Paw Thursday and called on his many friends about town.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Arnould were here from Viola and visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bernardin Thursday.

Henry Halboth was in town Saturday calling on his many old friends. Henry is assisting his sons William and George with the harvesting.

A. H. Hasselberg lost a horse one day last week in a most unusual manner. He was cutting hay when a rabbit jumped up in front of one of the horses which caused it to shy backward and in doing so caught it's foot in the sickel, which completely severed the member and the horse had to be shot.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Fane were down from Dixon Friday and spent the evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Gehant.

Fred Lord is here from Marshal town, Iowa this week and is overseeing the installing of the truck lifts at the farmers and Guffin elevators. This additional improvement will be welcomed by the users of trucks in grain hauling as the grain had to be unloaded by hand, not being able to occupy the wagon dumps with which the elevators were formerly equipped.

Several of our young ladies drove to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin July north of Compton one evening last week and assisted in surprising their daughter Miss Evelyn with a party.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Meyer, Otto Meyer and Miss Thais Meyer left early Saturday morning via auto for the vicinty of Burlington, Iowa, where they expect to spend a week visiting with friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Nelles entertained friends from Chicago over Sunday at their home.

Station agent Florian Walter announces that complete arrangements have been made for running an excursion to Chicago next Sunday. The round trip fare will be $1.75 and no doubt many of our merrymakers will take advantage of the opportunity to spend the day in the city.

Anthony Auchstetter has completed his summer's work at the Louie Hoerner farm and has gone to Sterling where he will be employed.

Mr. and Mrs. John Untz, Sr. are entertaining his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Rakener and her daughter Miss Rosia of Conway, Arkansas at their home this week. It has been fourteen years since the brother and sister have met and they are enjoying themselves very much.

Edward Henry delivered trucks to George Freedhoff, Charles Clopine and Louis Gehant farm Monday.

Charles Mackin had an insurance adjuster paying for a horse which was struck by lightning one day last week.

Mathew Maier, Jr. is here from Seneca and si spending a week visiting at the home of Mathew Maier and family.

William Horton was down from Compton Saturday calling on business friends.

The first carload of new oats was shipped from this point Monday. Nearly all the rings started in earnest Monday.

Many here are interested in The Telegraph's accident insurance for $1 per year to any subscriber to this paper.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Jeanguenat drove from Dixon Sunday and visited at the home of his sister Mrs. Mary Graf.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Bieschke were out from Aurora Sunday and visited with relatives here as well as his father, who is in the Dixon hospital recovering nicely from an operation.

Many of our ball fans drove to Amboy Sunday and witnessed the game between Amboy and Sublette.

Miss Helen Dinges was home over Sunday from Dixon and visited her parents Mr. and Mrs. John Dinges.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winters entertained friends and former neighbors from Rockford at their home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Morrissey entertained the members of the H. F. Gehant family at their home Sunday for dinner.

OBITUARY

LLOYD LYLE SCHRADER
Contributed

Lloyd Lyle Schrader was born Nov. 5, 1890, near Dixon, Ill., where he grew to manhood, moving to Brookings, S. D., with his mother in 1911. He was stricken with pleuro pneumonia May 28th and died June 29th, 1925.

He was engaged in farming all his life. He was married to Etola Lucile Fenn, of Brookings, on September 24, 1914, moving to a farm north of Brooklngs, where they have since resided. To this union five children were born: Glenn LaRue, age 9 years, Valda Lucile, age 7 years, Leonard Lloyd, age 5 years, Ralph Roydon, age 3 years, and George Harding, age 1 year.

He united with the Methodist church of Brookings shortly after his marriage and was a faithful attendant. He was a devoted husband and father, a kind and helpful neighbor and loyal supporter of the community club. Mr. Schrader's life will ever be to his friends and loved ones, a blessed memory.

Besides his wife and children, he leaves a mother, four brothers and one sister, two brothers having preceded him in death. Frank and mother at Los Angeles, Calif.; Clarence of Adrian, Wash.; William, of Douglas, Ariz., Leon of Sonish, N. L.; and Mrs. Ray Shanks of Brookings.

PROPOSES LINCOLN PAGEANT.

Annual tribute to Abraham Lincoln in form of a Lincoln pageant is proposed by the Springfield Register.

"We have had brilliant banquets, great outpourings of the people, visitations by princes, potentates, kings, queens, eminent statesmen, heroic soldiers—many of the world's greatest men and women—and we have placed numerous wreaths on the Lincoln sarcophagus at the base of the monument, but there has been lacking a great community demonstration shared by the common people, whom Lincoln said God must love, because he made so many of them," says the Register.

To this generation, Lincoln, like Washington, belongs to the ages. To only a few is given the privilege of a pilgrimage to the tomb of the great emancipator, the privilege of visiting his residence, walking where he walked, and placing him in the realm of the human being instead of the myth.

In the school on week days there is a sort of defication of Lincoln among children and on Sundays they hear of Christ in the same tone. They hear that George Washington never told a lie. There is something mythical about it all until adult minds get it straightened out. If the adult is busy at something else, the infant idea goes on indefinitely.

This year there was a trainload of children taken from Missouri or southern Iowa or both to Springfield, where they might view the tomb of Lincoln and see the house in which he had lived. It was a long trip for the little folks, but they were repaid. During the rest of their lives they will have a conception of the life of Lincoln not given to their parents, although had by their grandparents. They know that in their neighboring state reposes the Lincoln of history. They have walked where he walked and have seen the public buildings commonly visited by him.

These things have become so common to Springfield that it is probable that the people there do not realize the meaning of them all to the world.

If the Lincoln Centennial association or any other organization can bring about more pilgrimages to the tomb of Lincoln, either by children or adults, it will have rendered a public serve.

DR. FRANCIS E. CLARK.

Eulogies of Dr. Francis E. Clark, who has retired from the presidency of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, do not say whether he is modernist or a fundamentalist. Really it does not make any difference. His was not a work that permitted of haggling over details of creeds. It was interdenominational.

Forty-four years ago Dr. Clark organized the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. The name was remodeled later. He was 30 years of age when he formed the first organization in Portland, Oregon.

From that small beginning he developed an organization having a membership of 4,000,000. He was a Congregational minister in Portland in 1881. After he organized the first society of young people his idea was adopted by other congregations and in 1887 the United Society of Christian Endeavor, the national organization, was formed, with him as president. He served in that office until a few weeks ago, when he was made president emeritus. As a memorial to him the organization is raising a fund, which it hopes will amount to $100,000. Interest on this fund will pass to him and to Mrs. Clark during their lives.

The society not only is interdenominational, but it is international. Societies of the United States and Canada have undertaken the raising of the memorial fund.

Among the denominations of which the young people have become identified with this society are the Congregational, several Presbyterian divisions and the Christian.

Succeeding Dr. Clark in the presidency is Dr. Daniel A. Poling, New York City, who has served ten years as assistant president. Dr. Poling has been a field worker. He has been a world traveler in the interest of the society.

ROADS.

Mr. J. H. Barringer, first vice president and general manager of the National Cash Register Co., recently made a 3000-mile auto tour of the eastern states. On his return he said he had been struck by the "almost ceaseless building" going on along country roads.

Mr. Barringer is not the first to notice that fact. The old order indeed is changing in rural America, and the phenomenon noted by this business man is significant.

Like it or not, the cities are pushing their borders into the country. Like it or not, the isolated rural regions are being brought closer and closer to the towns.

Don't worry about it; our farms aren't dying out. And perhaps, out of this shift, there will come a situation in which the farmer is not compelled to lead a life of back-breaking drudgery, as he has in the past. Let's hope so, anyway.

BRUTALITY.

A move is under way in several states to tighten the laws curbing the use of brutal methods by police to extort confessions from prisoners.

Of course, if you believe that a prisoner is beyond the pale and ought not to protest at anything that is done to him, the law won't appeal to you. But otherwise it seems like a pretty good idea.

There is no excuse for third degree methods anywhere. If police cannot build up a strong enough case against a man without beating him into semi-consciousness they have no business in their jobs.

(Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

This is written in mid-Pacific.

Three miles straight down is the bottom of the ocean. A thousand miles furhetr on, it is still three miles deep.

Out of that bottom rise the volcanic Hawaiian Islands. The process of their making is visible and is not yet finished.

On the easternmost island the lava is still flowing, and the island is still enlarging.

There are two forms of lava, the "pahoehoe" and the "a-a," which the rains disintegrate into soil at different rates. From flows whose date is known, the rate of disintegration is known.

The same rains gradually wear down the outlines in which the deposits are originally made. On the island next further west, the lava has stopped, but the rains have made only minor alterations in the forms.

As we go on westward, the rains have done their work more and more—though these islands are less, not more, rainy—until on the westernmost the still volcanic soil has no volcanic outlines.

The only rational explanation is that the islands were made by the process that is still going on, in a time that can be computed from it, and that the western islands are older and the eastern ones progressively younger. This is the testimony of the rocks, in one of the few places on earth where the process is uniform and simple, and is so visible that anyone can see and understand it.

The time, to pile the islands up three miles from the bottom and other three miles to the tops of their highest peaks, and for the rains to form the soil and erode the outlines, is enormous.

WHERE THE INDIVIDUAL DOES NOT COUNT

Score one more for the Pacific. The Albatross expedition found the famed Sargasso Sea, in the Atlantic, relatively poor in both animal and vegetable live, but, going into the Pacific, it found a region teeming with specimens; plankton of every variety, from microscopic diatom to tiny crustacean; small creatures preying on these, and larger on these, up finally to the great sharks, sea lions and whales, whose carcasses, in turn, consumed by big and little, made the whole cycle over again.

On the border of two currents, warm and cold, all these were concentrated, in unexampled richness.

There is a strange fierceness in the sea. All the creatures in it are cannibals, and none of them ever lives to die a natural death.

Each one spends its whole life pursuing and being pursued, and only one in a million lives to have offspring. That one begets a million descendants, so the race survives.

The individual does not count.

NOT MUCH IMPROVEMENT ON PRIMEVAL TIMES

Out of the sea we all came. Its salts are in our blood; our temperature is that of the primordial waters, before the earth cooled; our life is still internally aqueous, a "combustion in a moist medium"; and our most delicate mechanisms regulate our internal sea, that it may continue the conditions to which life was originally adapted.

Physically, we are of the sea. And spiritually, we have abolished of its murderous ruthlessness not much except the waste of cannibalism.

A solider medium gives us better protection, so we can survive with less than a million offspring, and a few land species, of which man is imperfectly one, have substituted gregarious co-operation for individual competition. On this is founded what little approach to morality we have yet achieved.

The sea is profoundly immoral. The land is imperfectly moral.

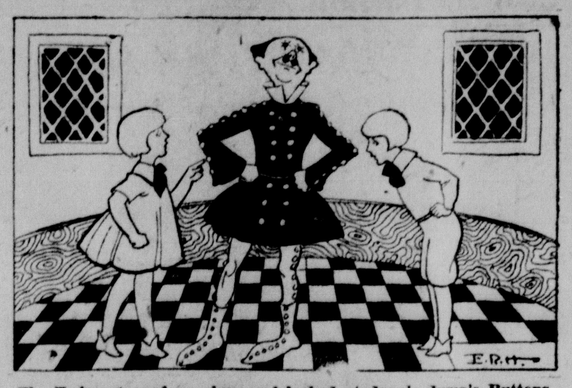
ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 2—JUGGLE JUMP PERFORMS



The Twins stepped up close and looked at Juggle Jump's Buttons

"Come here, Juggle Jump," said the Fairy Queen to the queer person who had just appeared in the dining room door.

Juggle Jump came over to the table and stood stiffly.

"I want to introduce you to some friends of mine," said the queen. "These are Nancy and Nick, the Twins. Nancy and Nick ,this is Juggle Jump, my general factotum."

"Pleased to meet you," said Juggle Jump stiffly.

"And we are pleased to meet you," said the Twins rising, as they should before their elders. Nancy made a courtesy and Nick made a low bow and Juggle Jump nodded.

"Would you mind telling me why you need so many buttons?" asked Nancy. "Is it because you are afraid of sneezing them off, or getting too fat, or something?"

"No, nothing like that," said Juggle Jump. "You will see printing on them. Each button has a use."

"May we look?" asked Nick.

"Certainly," said ther Royal Highness. "You will have to know sooner or later anyway, because I am going to have Juggle Jump go with you on your next adventure."

The Twins stepped up close and looked at Juggle Jump's buttons.

One button said "tall," one said "short," one said "fat," one said "thin," one said 'very big," another, "very small," and so on down. One said 'invisible," one saind "fast." one "slow," and others said things just as unusual.

"What do they all mean?" cried Nick in wonder.

"Just what they say," said Juggle Jump. "I can make myself into any sortof a person I wish by pressing a certain button. "I'll show you exactly what I mean."

So he put his finger on the button that said "tall."

Instantly he started to stretch until his head touched the ceiling. But not stopping there, it continuer toward the window, through which it went, neck following, and in another minute it came in at the window on the other side of the room.

"I can keep on going if you like," said Juggle Jump. "Once I went so far as to hunt up a new sun-spot."

"Oh, that's far enough!" cried Nancy, who was becoming extremely worried about his poor neck.

"Next I'll touch the button which says "Short,'" said Juggle Jump.

So he pressed another button, and instantly his head and neck not only shrank back into place, but kept on shrinking until he disappeared inside of his shoes and even the shoes all but vanished.

Really Juggle Jump, shoes and all, were no larger than a lady bug.

"It's most useful," he remarked, returning to his usual size by pressing another button. "I am at your service."

And so the Twins started on another adventure with Juggle Jump to look for Puff's missing buttons.

The TANGLE

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO THE LITTLE MARQUISE—CONTINUED

We had hardly got inside our car when Jack broke out:

"I'm not going to that luncheon with that damned cad tomorrow, Syd, and you know it, so why did you say that you will pick me up? You know he makes love to all the women in the world, and he can do this for all of me, but he must leave mine alone."

"Jack what are you saying?" I asked sharply. "Are you trying to insult me before Sydney?"

Jack saw that he had made a mistake and he grumblingly continued: "I didn't say tnything about you, Leslie, I was only calling attention to the fact that Sartoris is up to his old tricks again."

"Oh, perhaps that is what you were doing," I commented, perfectly furious, "but in doing so you were also intimating that I was allowing him to play those tricks for my benefit.

"Syd, you can get from my sulky husband his plans. After what he has just said to me, I am out of it."

I sank back in the corner of the motor and said no more until I arrived home. Syd helped me out, and I ran lightly up the steps. The butler opened the door.

"I waited to give you this telegram, Mrs. Prescott," he said.

My hands trembled as I tore it open. Something told me before the letters formed themselves into words that I could read: "Bee died today at twelve o'clock. Her baby is a fine healthy child. Will write. Sally."

I said nothing to the men. I could not discuss poor Bee with them at this moment. I recalled her last letter in which she expressed her fear of dying, and I had pooh-poohed it. And now she was dead—and she had left a child.

These things always seem so unequal. We are never ready to give up those we love. There was poor Paula who had to live and suffer for a long while and she had no way to take care of her baby—in her desperation she sends it to me, or rather to Jack. As this came into my mind, my thoughts went straying off on another tangent. I hought of how I had forgiven Jack for this great big thing he had done, only to find him so nastily suspicious when I talked for a little while in private with Melville Sartoris.

Everyone will say, "Poor Bee," I said to myself, "but I think, perhaps, that after all she is better off out of it. She had begun o be rather unhappy in her married life, although I am sure this unhappiness came from an unfounded inferiority complex."

I can tell you, Little Marquise, I'll never think myself inferior to any woman—at least that is how I feel now. I am as good as any other woman and I'll keep my own, no matter how many girls try to vamp Jack.

I did not know what to do about going to the luncheon the next day, but I finally decided that the people who are living in this world must still go on, no matter what comes.

I was glad Sally was there. She is a tower of strength in such crises.

"But what will become of the baby " I sai dto myself. "I wonder if it's a boy or a girl." Then I smiled a little. It was like Sally not to mention the baby's sex.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE — BY AHRENS

FABLES ON HEALTH

To keep a healthy body one must have proper sleep.

For the purpose of sleep is to recuperate, renew and renovate our bodily forces, so as to restore them to normal tone as much as possible.

Sleep is due to a fall of general arterial pressure accompanied by a diminution of the quantity of blood passing through the brain.

Relaxation of the tense muscles and rest of brain and nerve cells are nature's intent means of sleep.

An infant during its first six months should sleep about twenty hours daily. This period should gradually lessen until at two years of age, the child should not exceed sixteen or seventeen hours of sleep daily.

Between this and the fourth year fourteen hours is abundant, while between the fourth and ninth year time should be reduced to twelve hours or less.

Between the age of fifteen and seventeen years, ten hours sleep is considered essential. After this, during life, eight hours' sleep is almost universally considered as the safe period that may be devoted to slumber daily.

Too much sleep is injurious, for sleep means inactivity, and inactivity enfeebles.

OLD JACK QUINN HAS REVENGE IN BEATING BOSTON

Nearly Shut Out Former Teammates in Swell Battle

New York, July 28—(AP)—Jack Quinn, veteran of many diamonds, has demonstrated once again that age must be served some times in baseball. He pitched the speedin Athletics yesterday to a 2-1 victory over the team which spurned him only a few weeks ago, the Boston Redsox.

He permitted eight hits, but kept them scattered so wisely that not until the final inning did the Sox cross the plate, and then it was for a lone tally. Philadelphia located only six safe hits but one of them was an opportune double by the Boston boy, Gordon Cohrane, and a double steal made the second and winning run.

Other teams in the American League passed the day in preparation for the western invasion which will last for two weeks and a half.

Pittsburgh gained another notch in the National League with a two run rally in the tenth inning that se back the Boston Braves, 6-5. Young Gautreau, Bancroft's second baseman, played marvelously in the field and sent forth a double, and three singles. The Giants had a day of idleness and the victory gave the Pirates a lead of one and one half games.

Cincinnati had a double conquest over the Cardinals through the pitching of Rube Benton and Jakie May, 4-2. May had won only one game in six for the season when he pitched this shutout. Hornsby garnered but one single during the afternoon.

Former Illinois Star Signed by White Sox

Chicago, July 28—(AP)—Jack Malonee, formerly of the University of Illinois, but recently an outfielder of the Durham, N. C., Piedmont League club, has been purchased by the Chicago White Sox. He will join the club at once in Washington.

Mallonee is 21 years of age, left hander more than 6 feet tall and weighs 180 lbs. He has hit 380 this season and stolen 30 bases.

400 Horses at Aurora for Grand Circuit Races

Aurora, Ill., July 28th—(AP)—With trotters and pacers placed under the same system as the runners, every heat a race, and the events at varying distances, Grand Circuit racing for Illinois was inaugurated today with the opening of the first annual Aurora meeting at Exposition Park.

More than 400 trotters and pacers representing the greatest stables in America, were assembled for the program.

Seen from Press Boxes in League Parks Yesterday

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hazen Cuyler did some great batting for the Pirates. He smashed out four hits including a double and triple. His double figured in the tenth inning rally which brought victory to Pittsburgh.

The Cincinnati Reds southpawed themselves into undisputed possession of third place in the National League when they handed the Cardinals a double defeat. Second string pitchers were used by Manager Hendricks, Rube Benton copping the first game and Jakey May, fanning eight Cards and allowing only six hits, turned in the second victory.

If the Athletics were playing the Red Sox every day they would walk in with the American League pennant. In 19 games so far this season Connie Mack's club has been on the winning end 15 times.

The Chicago Cubs yesterday took a rest in preparation for their series with the New York Giants starting today.

Herman Schwartze, veteran pitcher of the Bloomington Three Eye League club, yesterday turned in a perfect game when he did not allow a hit nor permit a Springfield player to reach first base. Bloomington won the game 4-0.

To understand why U.S. Royal Balloons are known as "the Balloon Tire Principle at its Best," consider these facts—

THE comfort you get out of balloon tires depends on how soft you can run them with safety to the tires.

U.S. Royal Balloons are built in strict accordance with the original conception of balloon tire cushioning—true low air pressure.

They can be run at pressures which actually give you the comfort you expect from a balloon tire.

They do not have to be over-inflated to save them from early, uneven and disfiguring tread wear.

This is because their flat "Low-Pressure Tread" distributes the weight over a greater tread area than the ordinary round tread.

The entire surface of the tread comes in contact with the road.

The tire itself is built of the famous Latex-treated Web Cord, which gives the maximum strength and maximum flexibility so essential to balloon cushioning.

Put U.S. Royal Balloons on your car and enjoy the comfort of riding on genuine low air pressure.

Non-Stop Across Country

Traveling night and day without a stop, Lieutenant Leigh Wade, 'round the world flyer, and a companion, Linton Wells, came all the way from the Pacific coast to New York City in an automobile in 105 hours. In order to make the trip without any stops, Wade and Wells avoided all ferries by taking a longer route to travel over bridges. This shows Wade (right) and Wells (left) being greeted by Miss Helen Hoffman on their arrival in New York.

Vegetables Important

It pays in their quest for beautiful complexion exercised as much care in the selection of vegetables for the table as they do in the selection of massages and face creams they would obtain more satisfactory returns.

This is the conclusion of Mrs. Mann of Anytown after studying foods for health's sake.

Many a doctor's prescription contains nothing more than the elements contained in vegetables the housewife may buy for a few cents at the corner grocery.

These elements are phosphates, calcium and iron, the very things to clear up a muddy complexion, build up resistance in the body and make work seem easier.

There are root vegetables, such as onions, carrots, turnips, beets and parsnips. There are leafy vegetables, such as spinach, cabbage, brussels sprouts, lettuce, kale, endive escarole dandelion greens, beets, turnip tops and chard.

All of these are especially valuable for iron and vitamin A and some of these should be eaten every day.

Potatoes are an excellent food. In addition to mineral elements, they contain starch as well, which makes them high in energy, and one of the best and cheapest foods for children and people doing hard work.

Wife of Rock Island Policeman Found Dead

Rock Island, Ill., July 27—(AP)—John F. Maberry, coroner of Rock Island county, today started an investigation into the death of Mrs. David Desmet, wife of a Rock Island policeman, who was found dead in their automobile in the garage at the rear of their home this morning. Death was said to have resulted from alcoholism and followed a drinking party, in East Moline.

Officer Desmet told the authorities that they returned home at midnight last night, and that he had left his wife in the car after driving into the garage, as she was badly intoxicated. He said he went into the house and went to bed and that when he got up this morning and went out to the garage he found his wife dead in the car.

Grain Exports of U. S. Fell Off During Week

Wahington, July 27—(AP)—Grain exports from the United States last week were 2,393,000 bushels as compared with 3,330,000 bushels the previous week.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE:

The WELL DRESSED MAN

By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Light, White Hats

Wasn't it our own Oliver Wendell Holmes who warbled: "Have a good hat; the secret of your looks lives with the beaver in Canadian brooks; virtue may flourish in an old cravat, but man and nature scorn the shocking hat?" Isolated from the rest of your dress by your face, your hat is the bull's-eye of every eye. Its importance in the theme of dress cannot be overrated. Spanning the breach between the straw and the heavier felt hat of Spring or Autumn, is the light-weight affair of the sort portrayed in the accompanying sketch. Its thinness and suppleness especially commend it to the sportsman. It may be dipped, flipped, dented, poked, pinched, tweaked or telescoped into any one of a dozen different shapes at the caprice of the wearer. It is procurable in white, as shown, or tan, cream, gray, Lovat (green) and many other shades.

Such a hat is the next thing to going bare-headed, which, because of scorching summer sun, is never to be advised, health faddists to the contrary notwithstanding. A hat is imperative not only for proper protection to the head, but also for smart appearance and to round out the ensemble of a man's dress. A hat of the type reproduced is so negligible in weight, that it may be rolled up and stuffed into your hip pocket—unless previously engaged.

Really, the highest development of style is your hat, for nothing can go above it. Cool country and field hats are made of felt, linen, flannel, duck, drill and canvas, often with vents or eyelets piercing the crown to let refreshing air ruffle your hair—if it's still there. A smart sporting hat is blocked in the Alpine shape of Madagascar braid. Then, of course, there are the featherweight straws such as Panama, Milan, Bangkok, Mackinaw, Leghorn and so on.

Though the light-weight felt hat with the up-and-down or reversed brim has rather knocked the cap in the head for confessedly sporting use, the latter still occupies a niche of its own in "ye compleat" outdoor kit. The snugness and compactness of the cap and the fact that, correctly sized and fitted, it sticks fast in a whipping wind, fixes it firmly in the good graces of many sportsmen who will assume no other sort of headwear.

The RED RAIN MYSTERY

by HEADON HILL

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SAMUEL HONEYBUN, retired English countryman, finds blood in his rain gauge on the morning of the murder of Sir Francis Lathrop.

SIR GUY LATHROP nephew of Sir Francis, and engaged to Margaret, only daughter of the murdered man, is suspected of the murder and escapes arrest by going into hiding. Meanwhile—

ADRIAN KLYNE, detective employed by Margaret, working with Adela Larkin, has obtained evidence against the Honeybuns and their chauffeur, Wilmot, called Monkey Face.

IN REVENGE MONKEY FACE has hidden himself in a cave back of the Larkin home, with intention of kidnaping Adela and bringing Klyne within striking distance through the capture. Adela has left the house to pick berries near the cave and Wilmot has been watching her through a spy-hole.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

HE had made other spy-holes than the one commanding the garden door, and from one of these he watched his prospective victim at her pleasant task. Never had she looked so desirable to his satyr-like eyes. She was steadily filling her basket, but now and again she would neglect it to pop one of the ripe berries into the red, inviting lips through which had flowed the treacherous words that had lured him to the horrors of the third degree.

He tested the lashings which he had made ready, throwing his whole weight on them to see if they would stand the strain. Then he experimented with the noose and, finding all correct, returned to the spy-hole and gloated over the luscious loveliness among the bushes. Presently a satanic smile crept over his hideous features as an idea for possessing himself of the Rector's daughter flashed across the mad riot of his brain.

Once, on one of his prowlings, he had seen Miss Larkin release a snared rabbit from the spring. She was evidently full of pity for stricken animals, and he would play upon the gentle attribute which he considered a weakness.

A toss of the dainty head and a shifting of the basket to the crook of her arm told the watcher that the basket was full and the girl was about to descend to the level of the shelter. A few moments later she came tripping down the precipitous path and as soon as she was opposite the shelter, heading for the door in the garden wall, Wilmot made his play. Once, twice, three times he imitated the plaintive mew of a kitten.

It was all over in ten seconds. Adela set down her basket and darted into the shelter. Before she knew what had happened to her she was tied up in several knots and firmly secured to the upright, with Monkey Face grinning at her.

"Pretty little kitten, ain't I?" he mouthed. "You can stroke me if you like, but no endearing names will be permitted, because I'm going to stop yer yowling with this nice little gag."

Adela was not going to pander to his sense of victory by struggling or raising cries that would have been choked into silence. Though she was far from resigned to the fate that threatened, she submitted with a quiet dignity that would have held a note of warning for her captor had he known her better. A sunny, mischievous Adela was as harmless as a butterfly, but the dignified restrained variety was a personage to be afraid of.

"Now, missy, said Wilmot when he had settled the bonds and the gag to his liking. "I shan't hurt you if you act good and pretty. If you don't you'll be sorry as ever you was born. You have got to write a letter to your pal what calls himself Bulpeter, asking him to come and rescue you. Cut out for the bold hero, ain't he?"

Adela gave no sign. In fact she couldn't. The gag prevented speech. The rope chained her limbs to the upright.

"Nod your head if you mean yes, shake it if you mean no," he grinned at her.

Adela nodded, her face expressionless. She was not averse from the proposal that she should communicate, even under supervision, with her new colleague who was now also her lover. It would go hard with her if she could not devise means for running a cryptogram into the communication which should inform her friend of the state of affairs, or at any rate warn him against falling into a trap. For she shrewdly suspected that her gaoler was intending to use her as a decoy, after which his main purpose achieved, Wilmot would break faith with her and work his wicked will.

He produced a writing-pad and fountain pen, eased the rope looped round her wrists, and placing the pen in her hand, held the pad in front of her.

"Write at my dictation," he commanded, then stopped and scratched his head. "How far have you got with him?" he leered. "Will 'dearest' do for a beginning—come natural like?"

Never had she looked so desirable to his Satyr-like eyes.

Adela nodded emphatically.

"Here goes then," proceeded the dictator. "Take it down word for word, and no tricks, mind. It will be read carefully before it goes to post:

Dearest—I have been copped by You Know-Who. If you can't save me I am to suffer a fate worse than death. Don't fail me for God's sake. Come to the group of pines on Hangman's Heath seven evening tomorrow or it will be too late. Very urgent. Let all else go. Please interest Dad at Rectory. Tell him I am all right and you know where I am.—Yours, ADELA."

"Do we put crosses for kisses after the name?" Wilmot concluded his literary effort.

Adela nodded again. She knew that her lover would not hold her guilty of any such vulgarity—that he would understand from the crosses that the letter had been written under duress. When she had added a row of the ridiculous symbols after her signature Wilmot laboriously read over what she had written, Adela rejoicing at the sign of illiteracy in the tardiness of his perusal.

Clearly he was only concerned with the sense of the letter, not with the handwriting or formation of the characters. But not till he had torn the top sheet from the pad and placed it in an envelope did she permit herself a sigh of relief. He had not detected the hidden message she hoped she had managed to convey. There remained the fear that she had wrapped the message up so tightly that the recipient would pass it by, but she consoled herself with the reflection that the recipient was a clever man, used to looking below the surface of things.

"Address that envelope!" the sharp order broke in upon her reverie and she obeyed it with a show of reluctance which she hoped would neutralize the cunning little smile she was afraid might have been surprised on her face registering satisfaction with her penmanship.

Wilmot relieved her of the envelope and the fountain pen, and then he readjusted the rope which had been loosened for the performance.

"There is a post box opposite the Rectory gates, ain't there?" he demanded. "That's a bit of all right. Wouldn't suit me to go to the office in the village. I'll pop round and post this after dark. It'll probly miss the last collection, but it should reach His Nibs in time to fix our merry meeting for tomorrow. I reckon he'll be there. Now I'm going to cook a rasher and make some tea."

This was of supreme interest to Adela. As a healthy and hungry girl, she wondered if she was to share in the repast. That would entail the removal of her gag, and if that was done should she scream for help?" The decision was in the negative. No one would be likely to hear her, and she would only provoke the miscreant to premature violence.

But the question never really arose, for having cooked his bacon Monkey-Face proceeded to devour it without offering any to his prisoner. Indeed he taunted her with enforced abstinence.

"No grub for you today, missy, nor yet anything to drink," he jeered. "Perhaps tomorrow if you behave. Nothing like a little starvation to bring a woman to heel. You'll be ready and proud to eat out of my hand when I'm ready to let you eat at all."

Stoically Adela resigned herself to an unpleasant night, though hunger and thirst were not the greatest of her anxieties. It was a problem how she would get any sleep in the attitude to which she was compelled, in a sitting posture with her back against the hard upright and her limbs confined by the cruel rope.

But the presence at close quarters of her horrible captor put all else of her trouble for the moment into the shade, and she welcomed the coming of dusk when she gained a respite by his going out to post the letter. We must leave her to her solitude while we follow Wilmot on his errand.

He worked his way round to the front of the Rectory across the waste ground encircling the gravel-pit, and looked this way and that to see if he was observed. There was no sign of movement by man or beast. Then, very cautiously, he approached the post bo xand stretched out his hand to drop the letter through the slit. The letter was never dropped, for just as it hovered at the hooded orifice a hand shot over Wilmot's shoulder and quietly plucked the loosely held letter from his grasp.

Wheeling, with an oath on his lips and black murder in his heart, the ex-chauffeur was confronted by—nobody. To all appearances the lane was as bare of life and movement as it had been when he reconnoitred it a few minutes ago. Yet he could have sworn that he felt a breath upon his cheek as the missive was spirited away.

DIXON LADY FINDS LIFE ON "ROLLING WAVE" IS INDOLENT

Mrs. Alice Beede Gets Letter From Daughter Recently

Mrs. W. B. Saunders, with her daughter Betty, has gone to South America to join her husband, an engineer with the Andes Copper Mining Co., writes the following letter to her mother, Mrs. Alice Beede of this city:

On Board the Santa Teresa.
Tuesday, June 30.

Of all the lazy lives to lead give me a life on the rolling wave. You hate to stay inside a single minute and I haven't felt an urge to do one thing—even write letters—which you know I love to do.

There is so much to tell you that I hardly know where to begin. I did so hate seeing you get so small that I finaly couldn't distinguish you at all on the dock, and then Betty said, "Oh don't cry Mommy"—and I bucked up and we went below and we looked at our beautiful flowers and fruit, an then up on deck, and so on to luncheon which we ate and enjoyed.

We struck a heavy ground swell just after and Betty and I finally quieted down and went to bed and slept all afternoon. The stewardess nurse is darling and she came in to see us but we slept right on. However it got rougher and we stayed right in bed. The next day was very rough also. I went down to one meal, but slept most all day and so did Betty. Today, Saturday, I got up feeling like a million dollars. So much for us, and now for the weather. Of all the freakish weather ever—we've had it. It has blown a perfect gale every minute and not a drop of calm sea have we had.

Last night we rounded Cuba and got well into the Carribean and I've read of wind howling in the rigging, but now I've heard it. We were playing Bridge with the Chief Officer and even he looked up once and said, "Well, this would be tough if we were going against it." We were sailing right with it. We've gone through so many severe storms and the waves are marvelous. Saturday they were enormous. The boat is quite steady, but being so small it pitches a good deal. The service is good and the food also.

We have one of the youngest Commanders in the navy on board with his bride, who is charming.

There is a dear young girl Margaret Hebard, who is just out of her second year at Smith whom Betty likes and they have been together every minute. They lie in deck chairs and have all their meals brought up to them. Then there are two young chaps both from Sewance College in Tennessee, who are very nice. The father of one is an Episcopalian rector in St. Louis.

We passed very close to Cuba and it was lovely to see the green hills, and the lighthouse stood out like a beautiful while marble pillar. We saw a few islands a little earlier in the day, our first land.

I can't begin to tell you about the water. I never saw such blue. You've seen blueing water in a tub—too blue—well its deeper than that and so much life in it, oh, so lovely.

You'd never sit here a minute mommy dear, for this boat is going up and down like a roller coaster but I haven't missed a meal since Saturday. I eat lightly, and eat lots of fruit and we are doing very well.

The Chief Officer said at dinner last night, 'Well, we should have calm after the canal, but I'm afraid to say so after this trip so far."

We've had two quite unusual circumstances. We felt the engines stop and Betty asked the Chief Engineer what the trouble was and he said "Oh the engine has fallen apart!" They burned out some bearings and we laid by for about four hours and that was in the calmest water we've had since New York. They said it was 132 degrees where the men had to work to fix it. Then yesterday from early morning a fruit boat ran along side and finally to every one's amazement gradually coming closer and closer cut in in front of us and crossed in front of us no 100 yards away.

The Chief Officer was in the bridge at the time and he said at dinner last night that if he'd slipped the wheel for an instant we'd have rammed her. We had to slow down and it was a most fool-hardy thing. Just a smarty captain I presume..

We are all so distressed over the earthquake in Montana and Santa Barbara. We heard of it by wireless. Do send me some accounts of it.

Wednesday—

I'll just add a note this a. m. although there is not much news. The wind is still blowing a perfect gale, but the waves are not nearly so large this morning. We've had heavy seas all the time except for a while on Saturday, but I feel the motion very little now. Betty is not so fortunate. She still has all her meals on deck and the four young people have a good time but don't move about much. They have the Victrola on a little table near them and play it much of the time.

We are past the middle of the Carribean now. It has been lovely and cool. In fact I have my sweater on, which I love. Mostly one is comfortable in a thin silk and just on the edge of a sheltered place. Today is overcast and quite cool. I believe I'd rather have the rougher sea and cool than the calm and hot.

We get into Panama early in the morning and I'll mail this then. I could write on indefinitely but must stop some time. The moon light on the water is lovely.

Friday, (I guess.)

Its the hardest thing to keep track of the days for they go by so quickly and we've had a very interesting time lately.

We got into Colon Wednesday evening and didn't dock until nearly two a. m. It was so exciting to see the lights on land and the harbor looked so pretty made me wonder if it didn't look like Venice with is rows of curving lights around the shore. We crept in between two red buoys and every now and then a huge ship crept silently by, some well lighted and others with only a few lights, one in front, one in rear and one high on the mast.

As it got later and later, and we got nearer and nearer I saw there would be no getting the youngsters to bed so made up my mind to stay all night on deck if necessary. We finally docked and got to bed after two and were awakened the next morning at five by their banging every tin dish pan on board up and down the corridors. It seems the U. S. Doctor in Colon has to see every passenger and inspect all the crew before the ship is allowed to proceed through the canal. So here we all were hungry and cross and all he did was sit at a table and say "Mrs. Saunders", "Mis Betty" 'and we'd say "yes" and sometimes he looked at you and sometimes he did not. That over we started down what looked like a narrow river and after a short time reached the first locks. The three steps up. It was very interesting of course. The first ones, although having been through the Keokuk Locks which are exactly the same principle, these were not as novel as they might have been. They are huge, of course. The warship the Prince of Wales went through in had only five inches clearance on the sides. Then after you have stepped up the three locks you enter Gatun Lake which is quite a lake with wooded hills surrounding the tropical verdure is heavy and green, oh, so dense. You can understand how they have to fight it constantly to keep it from overwhelming the colonies. From Gatun Lake the canal narrows into what looks more like a real canal, narrow, although we passed some large boats in it.

Culebra Cut was a real hill and looked as though a giant knife had cut huge slices all down the face of it. more canal—then Miraflores Locks which stepped us down one step — more canal—then Miraflares Locks which stepped us down two steps and then we were in the harbor at Panama and Balboa and under our own power again. All the way through the canal you are towed (except thru Gatum Lake) by the little electric engines— "Mules" they call them, which run on tracks on each side and pull you by tow lines.

We had luncheon on deck, served buffet style, and you never saw such beautiful foods and such garnishing. A roast turkey all dressed up with everything under the sun. A roast ham on a huge platter and the bed of mashed potatoes in the shape of a ship, and all garnished with elaborate roses and flowers the Chinese love to carve from beets, carrots, etc. We had turkey, salmon, capon, ham, pork and beef, all cold. Salads, potato chips, the plates of caviar and various canapes were beautiful. They put at least three colors on one little canape.

It was lovely and cool in Colon in the morning but it got very hot by noon. Stifling humid heat. You could see things steam, and it rained hard several times. We were glad to get out into the Pacific and today is lovely and cool.

We had such a disappointment in not going ashore. Our breakdown seemed to make this schedule necessary. Some of the people left the boat at Colon and went across by train which only takes two hours as against the seven by boat. But I thought Walter would be sorry if we didn't go through, so we stayed on, but I did so want to see Panama.

Today we are having deck sports. All kinds of games like chalking the pigs eye, shuffle board, 20th century race, etc., and we have bought some lovely prizes and they will be given out at dinner tomorrow.

Two young men, such nice looking boys came on yesterday, so there will be more fun for the girls. Betty and Margaret are the only two young girls on board. Betty hasn't danced, even the night of the masque, so you may see the motion of the boat was too much for her, but yesterday and today she is feeling fine. Has been in the swimming tank several times, and is enjoying life.

I am eating everything and feeling fine. Pacific is calm and it is cool. It has been just lovely all the way since the fearful heat of the canal. Will write more laeer.

We are nearly in the harbor at Salaverry. Engines are stopped so that means going ashore Tuesday, July 7.

Didn't finish this yesterday as we went ashore and were so dead tired when we got back. We walked around the little town, went into the church and it was really pitiful Such towdry laces and paintings and one saint in a glass case was an American doll dressed up. But I presume it was all very handsome to them. Such a poor class of natives here. Only one white woman lives there, the wife of the manager of the Grace Line. They had a little Plaza with a band stand in the center and the square was paved with blue cobblestones. Some people went back to a Pre-Inca village, or ruins of one, but the first rain in history had washed way much of the inscriptions. The hills back of this place have quite a greenish hue for the first time since men were here. So this country has suffered the changes in weather and ocean currents that the rest of the world seems to be having.

Today we go ashore at Callao and into Lima, Peru. We stay all night and it promises to be very gay. This young girl Margaret, with whom Betty has formed such a friendship and whom I've been sort of chaperone for, is coming down to visit her father in Lima for the summer. And he turns out to be about the most popular American along the whole coast and one of the most important men. He has taken a house so that Margaret will have a home and bought a Pierce Limousine for her and she is the happiest and most excited youngster you ever saw. She cabled her father from the canal asking if she could have these young folks to dinner and have a table and dance at the Bolivar and he wired her yesterday "delighted." A very intimate friend of her father got on yesterday A most delightful man, going down to Lima also, and he says undoubtedly Mr. Heburd will have a party for all of us. I think I told you of the navy doctor's wife who got on at the canal zone. They have been stationed there. He is attached to the "Rochester" the ship waiting there to bring General Pershing down, and he will probably go along as the doctor for him. His wife, Mrs. Old, is taking the children down to Valpariso and back on the same boat, just for a touch of the cold weather. She is simply charming and I like her so much. They will be stationed at Annapolis in September and be there several years and she has asked Betty to come to her for a hop or some Naval ball when we come back. The Walkers, Mrs. Old and I will stay at the same hotel and we hope to have a nice time. I never saw anything like the way time goes and I don't have much chance to write. For one thing I can't sit in the library and write, that's where we sat while you were on board, for the boat pitches so, and after a few minutes I begin to feel it in my head. You see we are in a tremendous ground swell all the way down and the boat goes up on these big swells, then down into the trough and it keeps going on like that. I think it would be better for you to come (when you do) on the Pacific mail, which is much larger, although the service on these boats just can't be beat. Doctor's medicine helped me so much and Betty too, and I know kept us from being very sick.

I never felt safer anywhere, somehow, than on this boat. Haven't been frightened or nervous for a minute even during our rough weather. Somehow the pitching of the boat makes you feel how buoyant the water is and how it holds the boat up.

I must tell you about going ashore yesterday. Worst place along the shore, always rough at Salaverry they say. There is a little stairway fastened to the side of the ship and you walk down on that to a little square platform and the launch comes up along side and if it is rough you wait until they are about level, then you stantly and wish you were on for less there to help you. If it is calm it is no trick at all. When this huge big launch yesterday drew up along side the mole where we wanted to land, the waves were fierce and twice we were sent back on the crest of the big breakers and they had to draw up along side again. But we made it, and you could too. I feel my letters have been as dull at ditch water, but when you have to write on deck, in your lap, with the wind blowing, or on the bed as I am doing now, it is not so easy. I think of you constantly and wish you were o, for you'd you'd love it I know if you weren't sick. It is so very interesting. More in a day or two.

Anne.

SAVED FRIEND FROM HOSPITAL

Mrs. Heckman Decided to Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Note Results—

Council Bluffs, Iowa. —"I had pains in my back and sides and headaches, so that I could not do my work. Once in a while I would be sick a week. A friend told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had kept her out of the hospital, so I thought I would try it, as I had tried a number of other medicines. Now I feel like a different person and am telling my friends about the Vegetable Compound helping me, hoping they will let it help them, too. —Mrs. ETHEL HECKMAN, Box 21, R. F. D. No. 1, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Saved From An Operation

Monessen, Pa. — "I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a serious case of female trouble. The worst pain I had was in my right side and back with swelling in my side so that I was unable to walk at one time. I was ordered to go to the hospital, but here I am, still without an operation. I saw your advertisement and have taken the Vegetable Compound with splendid results."—Mrs. J. NELSON, 842 Donner Ave., Monessen, Pa.

PESKY BED-BUGS

(Pesky Devils Quietus) P. D. Q. is the new chemical that puts the everlasting to the Pesky bedbugs, roaches, fleas, ants and moths—impossible for the pesky devils to exist where P. D. Q. is used.

Recommendations of Hotels, Hospitals, Railroad Companies and other public institutions are a guarantee to the public that the safest, quickest and most economical way of ridding the pesky insects is by the use of P. D. Q., as this chemical kills the eggs as well as the live ones, and will not injure the clothing.

A 35c package makes a full quart, enough to kill a million bedbugs, roaches, moths or cooties—and also contains a patent spout to get the eggs nests in the hard-to-get-at places and saves juice. P. D. Q. can also be purchased in sealed bottles, double strength, liquid form.
